LENEVE TRIAL ON TUESDAY

ONDON, Oct. 22 .- Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, after a trial extending over five days, was today found guilty of the murder of his wife, an american woman, known on the stage as Belle Elmore. Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, who presided at the trial, sentenced Crippen to be hanged on November 15.

There is, however, the strongest prejudice in England against exceeding a man on circumstantial evidence, and an incident at the close of Crippen's trial has caused the impression that the jury may have recommended a life sentence.

After Crippen was sentenced, the foreman of the jury handed to the lord chief justice a note, after looking at which the justice said:

"That shall be forwarded to the

The Jurors refused to discuss the incident. A large crowd awaited the departure of Crippen from New Balley.

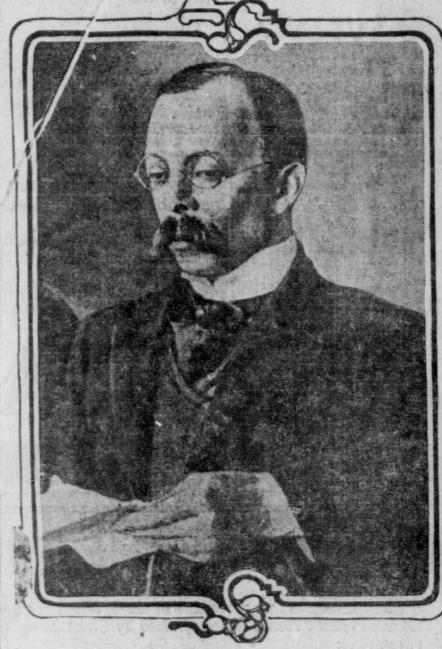

There were a few "boos" as he drove away to the Pentonville prison, but no other demonstration. Closing Scenes.

When court convered this morning Richard Muir made 'le closing speech for the Cosecution. He declared the crown had proved beyond a doubt that the body in the cellar of the Crippen home was that of the doctor's wife No one else had a chance to murder the an and bury the woman's body as was found. Crippen, the justice declared, undoubtedly was a liar and lived an immoral life, but, he added, the jury could not convict the defendant on that score. It must be quite convinced that the human parts found were the sody of Belle Elmore and that her death was caused by a wilful act of the prisoner.

WHOLESOME cleaning of the thugs that always infest Salt Lake at election time has been accomplished by Sheriff Sharp and his staff of special deputies. The work was necessary to be done, and it has been done thoroughly. Attracted to Salt Lake by the free and easy manners of the city administration just preceding an election, with the view of using these criminals on election day, they began a series of crimes Four Hundred Criminals Driven that was terrorizing the people. Action in ridding the city of them was necessary, and the quarter to which this action was most disconcerting can be judged by that from which the loudest noise is emanating.

Quartered in dens of various kinds, to be used on election day, these criminals were putting in these golden days and nights in robbery and even worse. Where the system of dividing their loot with the police did not protect them, the knowledge of the police officials that they were to serve as repeaters on election day threw a mantle about them and they were safe. Governor Spry and Sheriff Sharp saw the necessity for action, and acted.

A menace to the city has been removed, and good citizens will breathe easier. The Tribune party organ, of course, raised a great cry about the damage it would do the city in the east, but the opposite effect has been damage it would do the city in the east, but the opposite effect has been had. It has served notice to the world that Salt Lake does not harbor criminals. The real reason for the "American" party disgust, of course, was over the fact that it loses many true and tried supporters.

There are many kinds of thugs. Ex-Senator Frank J. Cannon is of one variety, known as the newspaper thug. Cannon, to human species, is as the vulture to the birds of the air, and the hyena to the beasts of the field. He lives off carrion. Just as the birds of prey smell from after off a dead body in the desert upon which they may subsits, so Ex-Senator Cannon with the unerring judgment of his kind smells out a situation where the trained habits of the vulture and hyena may profit him something.

Frank J. Cannon, and the employers who brought him here, the management of the Tribune party, are the real enemies of Utah. Just as he fouled his own nest before he left the state to vitiate the air of Colorado, for that purpose he returns. Engaged by the Tribune to write a series of defamatory articles against Utah, a part of his work by which he earns of defamatory articles against Utah, a part of his work by which he earns of defamatory articles against Utah, a part of his work by which he earns of defamatory articles against Utah, a part of his work by which he earns of defamatory articles against Utah, a part of his work by which he earns of defamatory articles against Utah, a part of his work by which he earns of defamatory articles against Utah, a part of his work by which he earns of the city.

of defamatory articles against Utah, a part of his work by which he earns his money is to make an attempt to help the "thousand-dollars-a-day party" to seize Salt Lake county, and to extend to the courty the system which looted the people of Salt Lake of three millions of dollars in five years. As the human vulture, Cannon is expected to be of service.

In his articles in Everybody's magazine, Cannon will go back forty or fifty years for material with which to show that "Utah is a community of lawbreakers," and that the state is a poor place in which to live. Ghosts of a dead past will be called to life to parade themselves before the artificially-heated imagination of Frank Cannon and do duty once more in an effort to help out the revenge of a disappointed politician. Men who have lain in their graves in Utah for forty years, and with which the present generation, looking ever to the rising sun, has absolutely nothing to do, will be revivified with life to stalk across the pages of Everybody's magazine and furnish a bugbear which Cannon can slay with the sword of his distorted rhetoric. Stories which are no longer used except to frighten naughty children to bed soon after dark will be clothed anew in their last street, murdered by a burglar. It will be many years before it can be overcome. Present conditions in Utah are such as will frighten no one, and a discussion of them can do no harm if the truth is told. But the misty past will be combed for legends with which to fright a people from Utah. The good The Herald-Republican has been trying to do Utah by advertising it in the east will be absolutely rendered null and void. Even as the truth never overtakes the lie, so will the evil the Tribune management is able to do react upon the head of our children and our children's children.

The Tribune management and a disappointed Idaho politician, by a personal trip to New York, arranged for the articles in these three magazines. The slander of Utah has been going on in Pearson's for two months. Arrangement was made for this by a personal interview of the Tribune management with the editor of that publication, as The Herald-Republican exposed at the time. That article appeared and was endorsed by the Salt Lake Tribune. Among the statements appearing in Pearson's was one that "Salt Lake is the only city in the United States that has small-pox all the year round." That statement was endorsed by the Salt Lake is false.

Tribune. The statement is false.

Salt Lake has as little smallpox or other contagious or infectious diseases as any city in the country of its size. In fact, Salt Lake is one of the most healthful cities in the United States. Its death rate is the lowest in the country. The statement that "Salt Lake is the only city in the United States that has smallpox the year round" is damaging to this city. In Pearson's magazine it reaches many people, and it is endorsed here at home by the Salt Lake Tribune, to be reprinted again in Pearson's magazine with that endorsement.
